

NOALIS — Personal Memory Assistant

Executive Pitch for Emergent — August 2026

One line

Noalis is a personal AI memory companion designed to turn long-form personal context into meaningful, humane assistance — starting with Alzheimer's patients and their families, expanding to entrepreneurs, independent professionals, couples, and adolescents.

Founder

Michel Carella — Belgian craftsman, founder of MesureChâssis, a B2B SaaS currently live in production for window measurement and quoting workflows in the carpentry industry.

MesureChâssis was built end-to-end with Emergent over hundreds of hours of iteration. That process is the origin of Noalis.

The Insight

Noalis emerged organically from building MesureChâssis.

I realized the true value of my collaboration with Emergent wasn't the code — it was the accumulated memory of context. The agent knew my style, my values, my constraints without me having to re-explain. That memory made every new feature 10× faster to specify and ship.

Then I connected two things:

1. My father is losing his memory. He asks the same questions all day. The family repeats itself endlessly.
2. The exact architecture I was using with Emergent — deep memory of the person — could give Alzheimer's patients and their families a compassionate, patient, endlessly repeatable conversational presence.

That was the click. Noalis was born.

Product Architecture (4 Layers)

1. Immutable Core — 15 ethical pillars: no diagnosis, no lie detection, strict scope, Ulysses-contract for user-defined limits, right-to-forget, professional-grade confidentiality.
2. Vertical Layer — profession/context-specific modules.
3. Personal Memory — the user's story, values, relationships, preferences, built passively (via a 2-month "listening pendant") or actively (via daily dumps).
4. Style Layer — auto-calibrated tone, humor, formality.

The core is immutable and shipped identically to every user. Layers 2, 3, 4 are personalized. This is what makes Noalis a scalable product with a deeply personal user experience.

Identified Verticals

Vertical	Signature Feature
Alzheimer & families (MVP)	Pendant device + EHPAD partnership pilot
Independent professionals (lawyers, doctors)	Case-context memory + jurisprudence assistant
Entrepreneurs	Memory-driven ideation → build with Emergent
Couples	Mediation via mutual, respectful memory
Adolescents	Companion for support, anti-harassment

Why This Matters for Emergent

This is the strategic point I want to explore with Emergent's team.

Noalis is a natural funnel into Emergent.

Every Noalis "entrepreneur" user identifies their idea, refines it, structures it, and validates it with Noalis over weeks — and then takes that rich, pre-loaded personal context into Emergent to build the actual application.

Traditional agents start cold: users must re-explain everything. A user coming from Noalis walks into Emergent with a ready-made personal brief and a pre-existing habit of working with a memory-first agent.

In short:

Noalis grows the top of Emergent's funnel by turning personal reflection into buildable projects.

This is the core of the collaboration angle I'd like to discuss.

Current State

- MesureChâssis: live SaaS in production, proof-of-methodology
- Noalis: architecture specified, feature backlog documented (100+ pages of internal design memory), development scheduled after founder's ongoing administrative process resolves in the coming weeks
- Founder capacity: full-time on both projects
- Ethical framework: complete and locked before writing code — a differentiator vs. most AI-first products

What I'm Asking

Short term (this month)

An Enterprise or Volume plan that matches my real Emergent usage (estimated ~150,000 credits/year based on recent months), rather than the current 9,000-credit Pro Bundle offer, which covers only ~6% of my consumption.

Medium term (September–October 2026)

A first exploratory call with Emergent's founders to discuss whether a partnership or distribution arrangement makes sense as Noalis approaches public launch — particularly on the funnel angle described above.

I'm not asking for money. I'm asking for a proper conversation with the right people.
